

PhD Scholarship

Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia

A Macquarie University Research Excellence (MQRES) scholarship is available for a PhD study investigating “School Choice for Children with a Disability and/or Challenging Behaviour” in association with an Australian Research Council-funded research project. The successful candidate will join the project Chief Investigator in a critical analysis of the increase in diagnosis of special educational needs in New South Wales government schools.

Applicants for this scholarship should mark the code #2010085 on their application form.

Applicants should have equivalent research qualifications to an Australian undergraduate degree with first class honours (such as a Masters degree with a substantial thesis component) in a relevant discipline (students from the social sciences and humanities are encouraged to apply).

For further and discussion regarding the project, applicants are encouraged to contact the supervisor, Dr Linda Graham; email: linda.graham@mq.edu.au, telephone +61-2-9850 9874.

Applicants are encouraged to check the following websites for more information: www.research.mq.edu.au and www.international.mq.edu.au/research.
